Two Submarines Escaped, Vichy Report Asserts

Berlin Declares Some of Warships Were Saved from Destruction

But Admiral Darlan Believes French Scuttled about 60 Ships

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Vichy announced the suicide of the French home fleet of sixty-odd ships at Toulon today and reported many French officers and dynamite crews went down with their vessels in wild dawn battles with German boarding parties attempting to prevent the scuttling of the powerful armada.

But the Germans claimed some of the vessels were saved by the quick work of Axis sappers, and full details of the harbor struggle still had not become known.

After announcing the self-destruction of the French home fleet, its dockside arsenals and coastal batteries, the Vichy radio itself went off the air temporarily, returned once more to repeat the news, and again was silenced.

Two Submarines Escape

The Vichy station also had reported that two French submarines escaped from Toulon during the melee in which French seamen fired their last rounds at Nazi troops before their ships sank. A third fleeing submarine was said to have

Two Ships To Be Launched Today

One Named after Polish Hero To Have Special Ceremonies

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27. (AP)—The Liberty ship Thaddeus Kosciuszko will be launched tomorrow, with Governor O'Connor and John Cieschanowski, Polish ambassador to the United States, guests of honor at the ceremonies.

Also on hand when the 10,500-ton vessel slides into the water at the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard will be Bethlehem workers and representatives of various Polish organizations from New York, New Jersey and Baltimore.

The vessel, named for the Polish hero of the American revolution, will be christened by Mrs. George P. Welzant, wife of a Baltimore city magistrate.

It's the seventy-sixth Liberty vessel to be launched at the Bethlehem-Fairfield yard this year.

Earlier, at Sparrows Point, a 16,000-ton navy tanker, the U.S.S. Niobrara, will take to the water, sponsored by Mrs. Mark O'Dea, wife of the director of public relations for the United States Maritime Commission.

Following navy custom, the tanker has been named for a river in an oil-producing state. Its keel was laid June 29.

There will be a special Polish celebration at Fairfield when the Thaddeus Kosciuszko is launched.

The ship will be blessed by the Rev. Carol Kalarz, of St. Adelbert's Polish Roman Catholic Church at Warner's Point.

Edward R. Rybicki, president of the New York State Council of Polish Clubs, will read a summary of the life of General Kosciuszko.

Stimson Forsees Stiff Battle on Front in Tunisia

Says Germans Are Using "Booby Bombs" To Halt Allies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson foresaw a "stiff fight" for the final mastery of Tunisia today and said the Axis was resorting to "booby bombs" in an effort to slow down the Allied advance.

Such bombs consist of wallets, watches, notebooks and the like, left as though abandoned in retreat. When picked up by a curious soldier, they explode.

At a press conference, Stimson briefly reviewed developments on virtually all the major fighting fronts.

There was every indication that the Germans had suffered a "major reverse" in Russia, he said. He described the Russian counter-attack as particularly remarkable.

Japanese Cornered

In "one of the outstanding operations of the war," forces under General Douglas MacArthur had cornered a considerable number of Japanese in a pocket on the coast of New Guinea, after fighting their way through dense jungles.

Admiral William T. Halsey's "remarkable victory" in the Solomons had altered the situation there considerably. However, a struggle lay ahead before the Japs are driven from Guadalcanal. In all probability the Japanese navy will strike again in that area.

Axis forces, fleeing before the British in Libya, were expected to make a stand at El Aghella, where a narrow pass between the sea and salt marshes offered strong defensive possibilities. The British pursuit has been retarded by bad weather.

Bad weather also had hampered operations against the Japanese in the Aleutian Islands, but American fliers "are taking advantage of every good day to make the Japs at Kiska as uncomfortable as possible."

Germans Hold Airports

As for Tunisia, Stimson said the Axis was believed to have brought in about one full division, 12,000 to 15,000 troops. These forces were holding a thirty to thirty-five mile

"Toni Jo" Will Die in Electric Chair at Lake Charles, La.

LAKE CHARLES, La., Nov. 27. (AP)—Grateful that she was permitted to talk to her convict husband, Mrs. Annie Beatrice (Toni Jo) Henry today offered him advice by telephone, calmly composed her affairs, saw her priest and made ready to die tomorrow in the electric chair.

Granting the 26-year-old murderess's last request, Louisiana and Texas authorities arranged the long distance call with Claude E. (Cowboy) Henry at the Texas penitentiary in Huntsville, where he is serving a 50-year term for murder.

Praises Her Husband

Henry who cried throughout the conversation, was unable to say much. Henry twice escaped trying to reach his wife. She has spoken tenderly of Henry, whom she said broke her of the drug habit acquired at sixteen, and was the first man ever to treat her decently.

She remonstrated Henry for his second escape attempt. "She told her husband to put his faith in God and during the remainder of his life to make every effort to live an upright and law-abiding life, and to go out of the front door instead of the back," Texas authorities reported.

She asked him to behave like a man and make his mother proud.

She was deluged with letters she will have no opportunity to answer. Many special delivery letters reached her today. Someone had sent her a $5 bill which she asked her jailer to mail to a niece in Shreveport, and also to send her a letter which Mrs. Henry nursed to health six months ago, and is her death cell companion.

Visited by Minister

A minister who drove all night from Little Rock, Ark., was admitted to Mrs. Henry's cell, and spoke with her at length. The cell has been her home for thirty-three months. Today she tidied it up, and sent to the cleaners a simple, black short-sleeved dress in which she will die, exacting a promise that it would be returned on time.

Mrs. Henry Dies for the hitchhiking murder on St. Valentine's day, 1940, of J. P. Calloway of Houston, Tex., who picked her and Finnon Burks up at Orange, Tex., and was slain after the pair seized his car on reaching here. Burks is under death sentence which may be changed to a life term since Mrs. Henry last week signed a statement saying she killed Calloway, thereby exonerating Burks.

Ickes Scheduled To Become Head Of Labor Dept.

Paul McNutt May Become Secretary of the Interior

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—President Roosevelt was reported to be concentrating upon the manpower problem today with a special cabinet reorganization under consideration.

Under this plan, as described by one in a position to know, Secretary of the Interior Ickes would be made secretary of labor and given powers now wielded by Paul V. McNutt as chairman of the Manpower Commission.

In turn, McNutt would become secretary of the interior, and Frances Perkins, the present secretary of labor, would be given McNutt's post as head of the Federal Security Administration.

Asked about this revision, which was widely rumored in the city, Stephen Early, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary, said the president had told him he had the whole manpower question under study, but had reached no decision.

Executive Order Expected

Early would not predict when a decision might be expected, but said Mr. Roosevelt had had the assistance of Judge Samuel I. Rosenman of the New York supreme court, who has advised him on numerous questions. Rosenman was reported to be preparing an executive order to make the cabinet changes effective.

There is some talk that the order may follow the lines of the British system, which places all administration of manpower in the Ministry

Roosevelt Fails To Get Action On Power Grant

Right To Suspend Regulations Apparently Blocked for Session

Senate Committee Decides Not To Tackle New Legislation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Congressional action on President Roosevelt's request for broad wartime power to suspend tariff and immigration regulations apparently was blocked today for the balance of the year.

The Senate steering committee decided against tackling any more controversial legislation during the waning days of the seventy-seventh Congress. Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the House Ways and Means committee described the measure's chance of passage this year as "very remote."

McCormack Protests

Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts protested on the House floor, however, that "this matter rests upon the doorsteps of Congress, and if some emergency situation arises which can not be met under present laws and results in a delay of the war effort, then the responsibility rests with Congress."

He suggested that the Ways and Means committee report out temporary legislation, effective until March or April, giving the chief executive authority to free the movements of persons, material and information from peacetime restriction is such a step is necessary to the war effort.

Meantime, McCormack said that the Ways and Means committee of the next Congress could start work early next year on a more detailed bill. He acknowledged that considerable opposition existed to the president's proposal in its present form.

Republicans Critical

His suggestion found a frosty reception on the Republican side of the House. Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts commented that Congress would be in session and could act speedily should an emergency arise.

"We fought another world war, and were fairly successful, and they didn't need these powers," Martin said.

Republican members of the Ways and Means committee demanded a "bill of particulars" on just what regulations were hindering the war effort. They served notice they would fight any blanket grant of authority.

No Agreement Reached

Doughton said the committee members had not agreed on what the bill should contain, nor on just what restrictions should be included on use of the special authority. He added, however, that the committee agreed on one point—that there is no point in writing a bill unless a quorum could be retained in Washington of both the House and Senate for its consideration.

"We want reasonable assurance that our work will not be in vain," he remarked.

Asked whether the bill was dead

Russian Troops Seize Four More Small Villages

Surround a Fifth in Their Great Offensive in Stalingrad Area

But German Resistance Is Reported Stiffening Somewhat

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW, Saturday, Nov. 28. (AP)—Russian troops were declared officially today to have seized four more villages and surrounded a fifth in the continuing Stalingrad offensive that claims a toll of more than 116,000 Nazi dead and captured, but the Red army's pace apparently has been slowed through stiffening German resistance.

Reverting to the issuance only of the regular midnight communiqué instead of additional special bulletins, the Russians said their troops had scored gains on both German flanks in their efforts to encircle the entire Nazi siege army. The extent of these gains were not given.

Inside Stalingrad the Red army also advanced 450 painful yards to occupy additional buildings, the communiqué said. Dispatches said the Russian garrison now had established land supply lines through contact with Red army units north of the city along the western banks of the Volga river.

Greater Battles Coming

Two hundred more Germans fell inside Stalingrad, the Russians said, but this fighting was only a small part of the greater enveloping battles the Soviets are fighting far to the west of Stalingrad in the Don river bend.

The Russians spoke only in general terms of this huge fight which also apparently is going on between the Don and Volga rivers in an effort to smash forever the threat to the Volga.

Of the fighting northwest of Stalingrad the communiqué said "our cavalry units encircled the Hitlerites in a large populated place and are fighting for its occupation." In the same general area the Russians were credited with capturing fifty-one more tanks, five guns, eight mortars, 1,000 rifles, and large enemy food stocks.

Southwest of Stalingrad on the lower arm of the Russian pincer movement the Soviets acknowledged repeated German counterattacks, but said their troops still were gaining ground, presumably along the Stalingrad-Novoselsk railway toward Kotelnikovsky. In one battle 600 Germans fell, the communiqué said.

300 More Nazis Killed

In the Nalchik-Tuapse sectors of the mid-Caucasus the Russians said their troops still were holding and that more than 300 Germans were killed and hundreds of others captured.

The Stalingrad offensive began Nov. 19, and the Russians had issued five special bulletins in five days, a practice discontinued indefinitely last night. Before the night communiqué was distributed this was the general picture of the situation.

The German radio said another Russian offensive on a curving 200-mile line northwest of Moscow had resulted in deep tank wedges in German defenses from Rzhev to

Madame Chiang Enters Hospital In United States

Wife of Chinese Generalissimo Will Be Guest of Roosevelts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the Chinese generalissimo, has arrived in the United States and has entered a hospital for medical treatment, the White House announced today.

The official announcement said the American-educated woman, leader of China was to undergo treatment for the "after effects of a serious injury sustained five years ago" when the car in which she was driving through a war sector near Shanghai blew a tire and turned over, throwing her heavily to the ground.

Will Visit Roosevelts

Upon completion of her course of treatment, the White House said Madame Chiang would be a guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House.

Where she landed and how she travelled was not disclosed.

The text of the White House announcement follows: "It was announced late this afternoon that Madame Chiang Kai-Shek has arrived in the United States. She has entered a hospital for medical treatment, necessitated by the after

Value of French Fleet Is Placed At $300,000,000

Destruction of Warships Called Sacrifice to Pride

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (AP)—When the French reportedly sank their fleet at Toulon today to keep it from Nazi clutches, it was a sacrifice to pride and patriotism which cost hundreds of millions of dollars.

The exact price is incalculable because of the vagaries of international exchange but, reckoned on the costs of building comparable British and American warships, this — on the basis of the Vichy report that all ships were scuttled — what France willingly consigned to the bottom at Toulon harbor:

Three battleships at $35,000,000 — $105,000,000.
Four cruisers at $15,000,000 — $60,000,000.
Three cruisers at $10,000,000 — $30,000,000.
A seaplane tender — $2,000,000.
25 Destroyers at $2,000,000 — $50,000,000.
26 Submarines at $1,500,000 — $39,000,000.
Estimated total — $286,000,000.
These estimates are conservative. They do not include lesser sloops and auxiliaries which were in Toulon harbor.
If all were sunk, the French navy's tribute to its honor probably cost in excess of $300,000,000.

Sinclair Asserts Axis Is Losing On Every Front

British Air Minister Reports Much Progress by Allies

LONDON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Axis armies are reeling back on all fronts, British Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair said today.

"The dispositions of the German high command" already are conforming to the will of the Allies, he told the Foreign Press Association.

The second front in North Africa has forced Hitler to divert a fifth of the air force he used against the Russians, and as a result:

"The heroic Russians, unflinching and indomitable in defense, now are passing to the attack and heaving their way through the massed German and their Allied divisions."

The air minister said the RAF and the United States air forces already had been engaging half the German and all the Italian air forces in the European and African theaters.

Problem for Hitler

"No longer is it we who ask ourselves what Hitler is going to do," he declared. "Hitler's problem now is how to parry our strokes. Twice within a month the German army has been soundly beaten. In addition the German high command has been outwitted and outmaneuvered in North Africa."

He forecast heavier bombing blows against Germany this winter and declared it was the bomber command's task to see that German forces do not get the new equipment with which Hitler hopes to recover his losses next spring.

Replying to a protest by an Italian Minister of Education Bottai that British bombers were destroying monuments, Sinclair said:

"This snivelling hypocrite is wasting his time directing his belated remonstrations to us." He recalled acerbically that no Italian protest was raised over the bombing of monuments and historic buildings in Warsaw, Rotterdam, Belgrade and London, but rather that the Italians sent bombers to join the destruction of London.

Applause rang out for two minutes when he praised the fighting French, who have unhappily protested Allied collaboration with Admiral

Hitler Jitters Over His Losses, Simpson Asserts

Associated Press Expert Discusses Fuehrer's Latest Moves

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

A fast developing case of defensive jitters not far removed from panic is plaguing Herr Hitler. That is implicit in his dubious move at Toulon either to seize the French fleet for his own use or to prevent it falling into Allied hands.

Whatever his actual motive, that desperate step and new violation of his pledged word to humbled collaborationist France is an open confession of weakness. It gives quick confirmation to jubilant Allied assertions that the initiative has been wrested from the foe on all fronts in a global war in a matter of weeks.

Attack Not Explained

There was no immediate invasion danger at Toulon to warrant the Nazi attack. Some other reason drove Hitler to issue the order; but whether it was expectation that the fleet would slip away some night to rejoin the Allies or fear that it would form the core of a revolt against him in France itself is debatable.

Whatever the reason for Hitler's fears, a defensive psychology was its foundation. Dread of what may be impending for him in Africa and Russia today, in the west perhaps tomorrow, goaded him to the step which has by every criterion increased rather than lessened his peril.

Whether all of that French fleet now lies scuttled as Vichy reports, or only part of it as Berlin says, the effect is the same. It can be substantially written off the war books except as the new French tragedy at Toulon serves to spur Frenchmen at home and abroad to war again against their Axis foes.

Sea Odds Changed

Certainly complete or partial destruction of the French Mediterranean fleet alters the sea odds in that theater at a critical moment. It must release for other and offensive rather than defensive use Allied naval and air power assigned to guard against any eventualities. Repercussions of the Nazi attack at Toulon on the still unclarified situation at Dakar are to be expected. That Hitler act must go far to bring French naval, land and air forces at Dakar once loyal to the shattered French Vichy regime actively into the battle against the Axis. Comrades of French officers and men who died or were disarmed at Toulon must yearn to avenge them.

Potentially the same thing applies to Martinique or any other French Colonial outpost. Petain-Laval influence over the thoughts and actions of French countrymen everywhere must be weakened by what happened at Toulon. By Hitler fiat a Nazi military overlord has been assigned for France to destroy the last nebulous wisp of French sovereignty.

The effect on the French public at home, now completely under the Nazi iron heel, is yet to be weighed. That the tide of more than passive resistance to the conqueror in continental France will surge to new high levels can hardly be doubted. And Hitler risked all this at Toulon not to achieve some grandiose military purpose that would restore him his lost initiative in the war; but as a panicky defense gesture.

Havre De Grace Hotel Destroyed

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Nov. 27. (AP)—The Sussexhanna hotel, a stucco type structure jammed with war workers crowded into this industrial area, was completely consumed by fire tonight.

Unofficial estimate placed the loss as high as $50,000. No casualties were reported. The three Havre De Grace fire companies fought a losing battle against the blaze which, first reports said, apparently started on the third floor.

The structure was about two years old, contained approximately thirty rooms and was owned by W. J. Botts.

During the hotel fire a blaze broke out at the Harford lunch in another section of town and one piece of apparatus had to be withdrawn temporarily.

The fire was reported to be the largest in Havre De Grace since the hotel Balou was destroyed in 1929.

"One Helluva"

Donahue said there apparently would be confusion December 1 because dealers had been unable to get application blanks for their next month's allowance. The OPA representative pointed out however, that stations no longer would need quotas, since their sales under the rationing system necessarily will be much lower than the seventy-five per cent allotment.

Certificates which the dealers must turn in when they obtain gasoline have not been distributed, the OPA spokesman said, because of fear they might be stolen. Distribution will start tomorrow.

Reports Conflict on Scuttling Of Big French Fleet at Toulon

Admiral Jean Darlan, former Vichy defense chief who went over to the Allies in North Africa, apparently accepted the Vichy version of what had happened. He was heard on the Algiers radio criticizing the French Toulon officers for not heeding his appeal last Nov. 11 for the Toulon fleet to flee to North Africa.

The toll of French casualties in the fighting at Toulon is mounting. The Vichy radio said late tonight before it again went off the air.

The Rome radio version said Axis occupation authorities had made repeated efforts to gain guarantees from the Toulon fleet to resist any Allied invasion from North Africa, and blamed the scuttling on "Anglo-Saxon intrigue."

In his broadcast from Algiers Admiral Darlan said "it was evident from the very beginning that Hitler's promise not to occupy Toulon was intended to keep the French fleet" at its base so it could be seized when the Germans were ready.

The Germans did not concede the complete destruction of the fleet, which would amount to a colossal naval victory for the Allied side.

The Berlin radio said sappers among the forces overrunning the last bit of French rushed aboard some vessels in time to tear away explosive charges that would have sunk them.

Before going off the air, the Vichy radio had reported the self-destruction of the fleet as a heroic episode in French history and there was the obvious suggestion that the scuttling coup was carried out after long deliberation and the firm decision never to give up the ships to the Axis.

In all the eventful day brought the end of French naval power in any hands; the end of even semi-free expression from Vichy; the end of any semblance of freedom in metropolitan France as the result of the pre-dawn Axis occupation of Toulon and environs which had been curiously spared since Nov. 11; a firm German military command in all France, and the demobilization of the French army and navy.

The French coup not only removed the French fleet from the Axis clutch but it also scattered the Toulon anchorages with the smoking hulks that the finest continental naval base in the Mediterranean is probably useless to Hitler.

The sharp clash of arms between the French, fighting for time to carry out the scuttling and the Germans, bent on grabbing what they could ahead of the explosions, was hailed from London by Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the fighting French.

He broke a week-long silence maintained by the fighting French over the American acceptance of Admiral Darlan as a cooperator in North Africa.

De Gaulle's view was that the French at Toulon scuttled the fleet "so that the nation might at least be spared the supreme shame of seeing her ships become ships of the enemy."

"At the moment when the ships were about to be seized by the enemy, patriotic instinct swayed the spirits of the crews and their commanders," De Gaulle said. "In one brief instant, the captains, officers and ratings saw through the odious veil of lies which since June, 1940, hung before their eyes."

Hitler discarded old promises again in the sudden occupation of Toulon early this morning on the pretext that:

1—The fleet had been given orders on Nov. 12 not to resist an Anglo-American force planning to land in the naval base; 2—The warships intended to put to sea "as planned"—presumably to join the Allies in North Africa in response to a bid from Admiral Jean Darlan, the Allies' mission of expedition in Algeria; and 3—It was necessary to "demobilize" the contingents of the French army."

These "unsure contingents" ashore and the naval crews put up resistance against the crush of the Germans and Italians.

Many Ships Wrecked
Vichy broadcasts described the scene at Toulon as one of utter desolation "with all the magnificent ships of the French navy lying on their sides and with dense clouds of smoke rising from them."

Toulon's public buildings were immediately seized by Germans climbing through windows from ladders, but the columns simultaneously dashing for the docks in futile efforts to stop the scuttling found trouble.

As Germans with Tommy-guns ran along the piers of the Vauban basin, beside the battleship Dunkerque which was under repair and past a line of cruisers, a sudden explosion roared.

It was the last blast of the battleship 26,000-ton Strasbourg, which had just scuttled herself. Other explosions followed in chorus and separately to salute the passing of a great navy, while the French coastal batteries blew themselves to pieces.

French sailors not quite ready to scuttle held off the advancing Germans with gunfire until they could sink their ships.

"There were many casualties, both among the defenders and the scuttling crews who sacrificed their lives to prevent the ships from falling into the hands of the Germans," Vichy accounts said.

"All captains stood on the bridge until their ships sank. Most of them lost their lives."

"There was absolutely nothing left of the complicated and precious materials stored in the naval arsenal."

The first word of the scuttling came from the Berlin radio, which said "part" of the fleet had been sunk by their crews.

Then a Vichy broadcast announced:

By orders of Admiral De La Borde, vessels of the French squadron at Toulon scuttled themselves. "At 10 a. m. there was not one vessel afloat."

Toulon at First Spared

Toulon had been curiously spared from occupation when Hitler sent his armored columns across the demarcation line into then unoccupied France on Nov. 11 to hastily reinforce southern Europe against the new threat of Allied armies sweeping over North Africa from east and west.

The German occupation forces were then pulled up at Marseille and the Italians by-passed Toulon to the north, with the Hitler explanation that he had assurances that the fleet would resist all aggression and take care of itself.

Then Admiral Darlan, co-operating with the Allies in Algeria, asked the officers of his old naval command to come over to the Allied side with their ships and crews—an escape regarded as hazardous in the extreme under the eye of the German air force.

Unable to flee alive, the naval command at Toulon took the next best course—scuttling—when the Germans determined to storm the great naval base for the showdown with the defiant warships.

French Crews Ready
The French were ready for Hitler's last violation of armistice and subsequent promises.

"At 4 a. m." the Vichy radio said, "German troops made an entry into Toulon."

"Armored columns made their way immediately to the arsenal which they entered by the Castiglione gate. At this moment Admiral De La Borde gave the order to scuttle which was immediately carried out."

Before dawn, as the troops were entering the city, German bombers lit up the harbor with flares and sowed a barrier of mines across the entrance to the roadstead to cut off any avenue of desperate escape. Then followed the first officially mentioned French resistance to the German armed forces since the armistice was signed in June of 1940.

Mussolini May Soon Lose Post To New Regime

Editor's note: Several days ago in London there were reports, emanating from what were described as reliable sources with good continental contacts, that disaffected military leaders in Germany had formed a junta with the purpose of "isolating" Adolf Hitler and taking control. Now, from South America, comes a story about Italy in much the same tone, also from a source which could not be identified.

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, Nov. 27. (AP)—A reliable South American diplomatic source tonight reported Premier Mussolini gravely ill and said formation of an emergency government in the event he becomes incapacitated has been discussed.

This source, whose name could not be disclosed, said that 80-year-old Marshal Pietro Caviglia, former minister of war and close friend of the Royal family, has been prominently mentioned in Rome as the possible head of such a government.

Mussolini was said to be suffering stomach ulcers complicated by a heart condition.

The dictator also was reported bitterly disappointed by the failure of the Fascist system to inculcate a warlike sentiment in the hearts of the people.

The diplomatic source said that information from his colleagues abroad indicated many Italians had been executed by firing squads for "indifference." He asserted that the principal complaint of the people is that the nation already has lost all chance of favorable participation in the post-war decisions, "no matter who is going to dictate the peace."

The potential attitude of an emergency government toward Germany and the Allies is not known but reports from the Fascist capital said it was a project fostered by a group of military men who have been discarded by the duke for lack of enthusiasm for the war. Therefore, it was believed, it might result in a move toward a separate peace.

Roosevelt Fails

for the present, Doughton replied: "I wouldn't say that. I'll be able to tell you much more about that tomorrow." He added, however, that action this year "is extremely doubtful."

House and senate leaders will confer tomorrow on the possibility of keeping a quorum in Washington, and Doughton said that conference probably would determine whether the committee would attempt to draft a bill this session.

Jeffers Promises Common Sense in Gas Rationing

But He Insists System Must Be Extended to Entire Country

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—The nation's rubber and rationing chiefs today promised a "common sense" administration of the nationwide gasoline rationing program but left no lingering doubt that the system already in effect in the east would be extended over the entire country next Tuesday.

Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers told the Senate's special Defense Investigating committee that due allowances would be made for the longer distances necessarily traveled by westerners and mid-westerners, and for lack of public transportation facilities in some sections.

Promises Common Sense
"There must be a common sense administration, and if I continue to handle it there will be common sense administration," said Jeffers, himself a midwesterner.

Jeffers testified that full provision had been made to assure war workers gasoline enough to get to and from their jobs.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson promised that the farmers likewise would get what they needed.

And Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, described arrangements to give truckers sufficient fuel to keep essential trucks rolling.

"The farmer is just as essential as the aircraft worker," Henderson said.

Eastman told the committee he was convinced the railroads could not take over the transportation work being performed by trucks and buses.

Jeffers Scores Opponents
Jeffers spoke out against what he called organized opposition to nationwide rationing and declared the opponents "don't know what they are doing." The program, he declared, is "an absolute necessity."

And Henderson added when he took the stand that voluntary rationing certainly would not do the job.

Jeffers held out hope that the definition of essential driving might be broadened in the spring of 1944, but emphasized that depended upon the success of the synthetic rubber production program and the war situation at that time.

The guide for administering the entire program will be to keep really essential transportation rolling, all three officials emphasized.

Will Protect Workers
Jeffers said he had issued a memorandum asking that in the case of war workers, local rationing boards be governed by the recommendations of management-labor boards set up to determine individual gasoline needs. He said any disputes should be resolved in such a way that the workers can get to work, pending final determination.

Further, Jeffers said, he had asked Eastman to give farmers and stockmen to understand that in cases of local difficulties "they are to continue their normal operations until such time as their individual needs are determined."

Eastman said farmers who have trouble getting fuel for their trucks should confer with their local farm agent, who will present the matter to the county war ration board and to district offices of defense transportation.

Henderson declared that a farmer who needed extra mileage for his passenger car would be assured of a square deal because his problem would be considered by his neighbors.

"If a farmer had to drive 1,000 miles a month and could convince his neighbors on the rationing board that the 1,000 miles was necessary, he would get the gasoline and tires needed for that mileage," the price administrator said.

who led civil forces called out to help quell the riot, said he believed the battle was the result of antagonism between negro soldiers and negro military police.

Trouble was brewing all night and was set off when a military policeman shot and wounded a soldier for resisting arrest after the trooper had hit a negro girl on the head with a bottle.

About 150 soldiers were lined up awaiting buses to return to camp, after an initial outbreak had been quieted, when the gun battle began.

A jeep carrying negro military police arrived. Close behind it came a car filled with armed soldiers. A shot was fired by an unidentified person as an "MP" got out of the jeep.

Fight Nearly Three Hours
Firing continued for nearly three hours as military and city police closed in on the rioters who were armed with rifles, pistols and at least one Tommy gun.

A negro soldier, whose identity was not been announced, and Robert Riley, 44, negro civilian, were killed.

Wounded were First Lt. August J. Esmann, 39, of Sheridan, Wyo., and two other white military policemen, two negro military policemen, a white City police officer, a negro city police officer, four negro soldiers and a 17-year-old negro girl.

Abandoned guns and ammunition were picked up around the battle during the day and soldiers were apprehended as they emerged from hiding places.

Toulon Harbor Closely Watched By the Germans

Believed Impossible for French to Have Saved Big Fleet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—

Captain Leland P. Lovette, navy public relations chief, said today that Axis forces had been patrolling outside Toulon harbor for some time and that it probably would have been impossible for the French warships tied up there to escape.

Lovette spoke at Secretary of the Navy Knox's press conference, at which Knox repeatedly emphasized that the navy had no confirmation of reports from Europe that German forces had occupied Toulon and that part or all of the French fleet there had been scuttled.

Lovette, explaining that he was speaking only of physical problems which confronted the French fleet command, said that Toulon had a very narrow harbor entrance, not much wider than double the width of a broad city street, and he added that if an escape had been tried the Axis forces, including air craft, would unquestionably have attacked, probably sunk some ships in the harbor entrance, and there by bottled up the rest of the fleet.

Knox said the navy's information on ships in the harbor showed there the Dunkerque and Strasbourg, capital ships; the old battleship Provence; four heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, eighteen destroyers, and probably about twenty-one submarines—a total of sixty-four vessels.

However, Knox said, some of these ships have been stripped of parts to furnish replacements for the other ships and were therefore immobile.

He described as interesting but without confirmation by the navy here various reports which he said had "come over the wires."

One dispatch, he said, related that the French ships had fired at each other to blast holes into the bulk near the water lines. The reason for such an action, Knox explained, would be the fear that if the ships were sunk merely by opening their sea cocks the enemy would be able to raise them.

Anna Harrington Free of Murder Charge in Bronx

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (AP)—The slender arms of 21-year-old Mrs. Anna Harrington, who was acquitted Monday of the fatal shooting of her husband, closed around each of her four children today a few seconds after Bronx Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin decreed that the mother could take custody of her children.

Hugging and kissing the children from whom she had been long separated, the mother vowed through her tears:

"I'll never, never leave them. I'll never, never leave them. I'm glad I have them back. I'm so happy."

A few steps behind stood Mrs. Florence Kelly Cammarata, foster-mother of the slain Alvin Karpis, who had obtained custody of the children claiming that Mrs. Harrington would not permit them to see their dying father.

Reunion of the children with their mother had been delayed three days when Mrs. Cammarata failed to turn them over to Mrs. Harrington Tuesday and the following day sought legal permission to visit the children once a month.

Mrs. Cammarata's request threatened to prolong Mrs. Harrington's custody fight again today, until the mother hurriedly agreed to a month's visit which Justice McLaughlin set at three hours' duration.

A few moments before court convened, Mrs. Cammarata led the children into the courtroom, past the row where Mrs. Harrington sat with her sister and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mirra.

Little Carol Ann Harrington saw her mother, broke away from Mrs. Cammarata, and ran to fling herself into her mother's arms. Small Alvin chased after his sister.

"My darlings, my darlings," the mother sobbed as she hugged them. Anthony slid off Mrs. Cammarata's lap and started up the aisle, shouting "mama, mama."

Allen began to cry and was carried into the corridor by Mrs. Cammarata.

strip along the Gulf of Tunis, including the cities of Bizerte, Tunis, Sfax and Gabes, all of which have excellent airports.

The mountainous Tunisian terrain was particularly favorable for defense, he continued, and the Germans are holding strong positions. To dislodge them the Allied command is now preparing an assault force.

Organizing this force, however, involves moving men and supplies over a distance of several hundred miles from Algeria, and such movements are subject to frequent attack by planes based in Sicily and Sardinia. In addition to the usual bombing, Axis planes, he said, were scattering thousands of pyramidal spikes, designed to cut the tires of airplanes and motor vehicles.

Two Women and Three Men Accused Of Aiding Escape of Broenstrup

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Two women and three men described by the government as Silver Shirt adherents were charged today with aiding Howard Victor Broenstrup, man of many aliases, during his four months as a fugitive from arrest on a seditious conspiracy indictment.

The Justice department announced the arrests in a cleanup of the Federal Bureau of Investigation search for Broenstrup which ended Monday in a cottage near New Galilee, Pa.

Among those arrested was Adelaide Marian Pelley of Noblesville, Ind., daughter of William Dudley Pelley, the Silver Shirt organization founder who was sentenced to fifteen years in prison after being convicted of sedition at Indianapolis August 5.

Pelley and Broenstrup were among twenty-eight persons indicted here July 23 on charges of conspiracy to undermine the loyalty, discipline and morale of the armed forces. Broenstrup was Pelley's attorney.

The second woman seized was Margaret M. Carmichael, also of Noblesville, long an employee of Pelley.

The men seized on charges of conspiring to harbor and conceal the fugitive were:

Victor Hove, New Castle, Pa., who the FBI said was a substantial financial contributor to the Silver Shirt organization and "one of its foremost leaders in Western Pennsylvania."

Henry Meine of near new Galilee, who also was described as a financial contributor to the Pelley organization and was alleged to have furnished Broenstrup with food and other provisions.

Frank W. Mariner of Poland, Ohio, described as an adherent of Pelley and alleged to have furnished Broenstrup with food and other supplies.

The Justice department said that the five would be tried in federal court at Pittsburgh and that proceedings had been started for the removal of Miss Pelley and Mariner to Pennsylvania.

The department said that Miss Pelley long had been active with her father in the work of the Silver Shirts and Pelley's fellowship press, and that while Broenstrup was in hiding "she sought to communicate with him for the purpose of sending his clothing and other material belonging to him."

The arrest of Broenstrup, who at various times used as aliases the Duke of St. Saba, count Victor Cherep-Spiridovich and Colonel Bennett, among others, brought into custody the last of the twenty-eight men and women indicated here, although the government has not yet completed the procedure for removing all of them to the District of Columbia for trial.

The government is considering seeking indictments against two or three additional persons in connection with the same alleged conspiracy.

"Naval and land forces have been able to pour men and materials into Tunisia," the Berlin radio said, adding that "deployment of Axis forces was still in progress."

It was estimated, however, that the Allies might be able to send as many as 150,000 men, many of them British veterans of hard fighting in France, into the battle to throw the Axis from its last footholds in Tunisia. Preliminary brushes, in which Axis tanks too a bad beating, indicated, too, that the Allies were hauling up great quantities of artillery.

Air fighting continued to rage as Allied bombers, protected by fighters, loosed loads of high explosive on the air fields at Tunis and Bizerte and battled the Axis craft that rose to meet them. A delayed Allied communiqué reported that American and British planes destroyed at least twenty-two aircraft in combat and on the ground during Wednesday and Thursday.

Ten Axis Planes Destroyed

Ten enemy planes were destroyed on the ground at Tunis, the report said. The RAP acknowledged loss of seven planes, but said pilots of three of them landed safely. The Berlin radio offered no figures in support of its statement that the Axis had gained aerial superiority over Tunisia.

An Italian communiqué related that a clash of armored cars occurred in Tunisia, "ending in favor of Axis forces," but did not specify the site of the engagement. It also told of Axis planes machine-gunning Allied forces on the march.

Allied aerial activity appeared not to have been hampered by the first rains of the North African wet season, but ground troops of the First army probably were slowed somewhat as they negotiated the foothills of the Atlas mountains in their drive toward Bizerte.

Little Action in Libya

For the first time since the British Eighth army smashed Marshal Edwin Rommel's Africa Corps at El Alamein on Oct. 23, the Middle East command said there was "nothing to report" from its land forces in Libya, and that aerial activity was limited. It revealed, though, that its medium bombers were far westward to blast Rommel's line of retreat and to help disorganize Axis aid forces at Tunis.

In addition to ranking the Tunis airport, the fliers from the east reported direct hits on railway installations, freight yards and warehouses in the besieged city. They also reported damaging three Axis ships at sea and in port. Shipping was attacked by American four-motored bombers at Tripoli and Haifa. Two ships were hit.

The yet was no indication how many troops Rommel had managed to concentrate at El Agheila for a final stand against the pursuing British, or whether the Nazi marshal intended to offer battle there.

In Washington Secretary of War Stimson said the remnants of the African Corps were expected to make a "determined stand" at El Agheila.

He estimated the number of Axis troops in Tunisia at between 12,000 and 15,000, saying that they occupied strong positions and that a stiff fight might be expected before they were driven into the sea.

In the course of his press conference, the war secretary also said the Nazis still had possession of the two ports of Sfax and Gabes far to the south of Bizerte and Tunis on the Gulf of Tunis.

All-Out Attack

que said, continued to pound enemy communications in the Tunisian defense triangle, while both fighter and bomber patrols attacked Axis reconnaissance units.

Main Assault Soon

That the main Allied assault to drive the Axis from North Africa would not be long in coming was indicated earlier in the day when the Berlin radio reported that fighting was in progress for the vital railroad junction of Mateur, twenty-five miles south of Bizerte. The Allied drive appeared to be aimed at snapping the only rail connection between Bizerte and Tunis and isolating the German-Italian forces in the two cities so that they might be destroyed separately.

An Allied communiqué, while ignoring the thrust at Mateur, announced earlier that troops of Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's force had captured Mejez El Bab, thirty miles southwest of Tunis, after stiff resistance and was "advancing successfully." Radio Morocco reported that French forces under Henri Honore Giraud were racing eastward in cooperation with their allies.

The swift pace of the Allied advance, as it gathered up loose ends preparatory to striking with its full weight, proved to military observers that Anderson was alert to the rush of Axis reinforcements from Sicily and intended to launch his main assault at the earliest possible moment.

"Naval and land forces have been able to pour men and materials into Tunisia," the Berlin radio said, adding that "deployment of Axis forces was still in progress."

It was estimated, however, that the Allies might be able to send as many as 150,000 men, many of them British veterans of hard fighting in France, into the battle to throw the Axis from its last footholds in Tunisia. Preliminary brushes, in which Axis tanks too a bad beating, indicated, too, that the Allies were hauling up great quantities of artillery.

Dispatches said war material was arriving in Stalingrad by land for the first time in months. The garrison previously had depended on the Volga, now hazardous because of huge ice blocks.

As Russian communications improved, German routes conversely deteriorated.

High-Riding Days Are Numbered

SOME THINGS are being heard in the halls of Congress, in consequence of the recent election turnover, that should long ago have been given emphatic utterance.

For example, in connection with the request by President Roosevelt for further powers to suspend tariff and immigration laws for the duration of the war, Representative E. E. Cox, of Georgia, declared that the House membership "proposes to recapture and reclaim all the powers that have been filched from it," which, he said, meant a coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans when the new Congress meets in January with an almost equal party division.

"Congress has surrendered many powers which it must recapture," Representative Cox said. "Congress must claim the right to perform all of its constitutional functions. If I understand the temper of the people of this country, then I know they are sick and tired of government by bureaucracy. They are completely fed up on the type of administration of public affairs that we have been experiencing for a good long time."

At another point, Representative Cox declared that "under the guise of administrative law, bureaucrats have seized and exercised powers which it was never intended they should have."

This long-delayed reaffirmation of its rights, hitherto held in abeyance by a preponderant administration majority, has produced portents in the House that pretty tough sledding is ahead for the administration in its request for additional powers. Even the watered-down version of the original bill introduced for this extension of authority has aroused much opposition with indications that the proposal will be left to the new Congress. In heated sessions of the Ways and Means committee there was frank discussion of the misuse of previous powers granted to the president, notably in the Price and Wage Control bill.

Various other voices are being raised in opposition to administrative policy, including Senator Byrd, of Virginia; Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, and John W. Boehne, of Indiana. They are all independent Democrats, and some may wonder why Republican opposition is not often heard. An explanation for that, however, is that the Republicans have been having slim chances of being heard because recognition is usually given the Democrats. That is a situation which will be changed when the new Congress is organized; and, as stated, the administration will not have such free and easy sledding when that comes about, which will be a salutary thing.

A Victory Help In the Kitchen

DAVID LAWRENCE has pointed out that the home front, too long neglected through attention to military requirements, must be strengthened both in manpower and materials. So also must there be help in the home front from womanpower and materials.

The nation needs this womanpower, not only in war factory, nursing, clerical and other jobs, but also right in the kitchen, where she can help greatly by saving waste fats to make explosives.

Explosives require glycerine and glycerine comes from fats. Therefore, the housewives of America must save all waste kitchen fats—pan drippings, bacon grease, frying fats. They must save at least 500-100,000 pounds a year—as long as the war lasts.

Saving fats is an easy task. They should be strained into a wide mouthed can and stored in a cool place so that they do not become rancid. When a pound or more is collected it should be taken to the butcher who will pay for it and end it on the way to the munitions factory.

This war won't be fought in the kitchens of America, but it may be won or lost here if the nation's housewives fail in their job of keeping the guns loaded.

Another Terror Reign Appears in the Offing

DESPOTIC-MINDED TOTALITARIANS induced the aged von Hindenburg to appoint Adolf Hitler chancellor, although only a few months previously the German people had rejected the Nazis at the ballot box. It was not long until von Hindenburg died, and then Hitler set himself up as both premier and president of Germany. He became an absolute dictator, and has constantly broadened his powers. An army abal is resisting him, yet it is so disciplined that it will do nothing positive against him until Germany suffers a major military defeat.

Now Hitler is using the same formula of government by gangster tactics in his attempt to legalize the Vichy regime.

France. Actually Petain's regime has been unconstitutional, for the French parliament never gave him unrestricted powers as president. Yet this senile man, the victim of the same sort of intrigue as was von Hindenburg, has signed a decree which attempts to saddle Pierre Laval upon the French people as dictator. The decree gives Laval unlimited sway. Petain has actually abdicated.

The Germans hail Laval as "France's man of the hour." He may well not last more than an hour. His rule is entirely puppet. All France is occupied by German troops and (what is even worse) by the German Gestapo. The French colonies have joined the Allies. The French fleet refuses to move against the United Nations. The armies of the free world close in more tightly on France. Allied planes fly over it daily, in almost complete safety. Laval, without any real authority and completely bereft of honor, occupies a phony throne.

But the people of France will rise. They do not sing the Marseillaise without the utmost of patriotic feeling. Another reign of terror is in the offing. It has swept France every time that French fortunes have sunk to low ebb. The greater danger is that this terror will spread throughout Europe as the German masters are driven away from their thousands of Bastilles. Only Allied victory will restore peace and order in disillusioned Europe.

A Sensible Reminder For State Republicans

AS stated the other night by Galen L. Tait, the energetic Republican state chairman, the G. O. P. of Maryland is "now revived, restored, rejuvenated, happy and hopeful and ready to do its part in the national cause of victory and reconstruction, and in the state and national political contests of 1944, 1946 and 1948."

But let not Republicans do too much sitting back and breathing easy about this. There is something to be done, not only in the near and distant future, but in the present. Mr. Tait has pointed this out, and his words should sink deeply into every Maryland Republican's mind.

"If we expect to build up the Republican party—and we do assuredly and are beginning now—then the curbstone disputants and critics, and the armchair political strategists in our party will have to get out on the firing line," Tait said, adding that "we cannot organize our party and win victories with so-called Mexican armies, consisting of many generals and few company officers and privates."

That is quite true; wherefore, as Tait suggests, precinct party organizations in every county, as well as in Baltimore city, require careful building up. Also, constructive suggestions for strengthening the party and its influence in legislative circles should be submitted to the state and county chairmen in response to the invitations therefore extended by Tait on behalf of himself and them.

If the party can have some of the work and effort that all too belatedly came in the last minutes of the recent election campaign, in the interim between now and the 1946 primary campaign, it can achieve the state victory it so narrowly missed in the recent election.

A year later, the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor probably does not seem to the Japs as having been a prize-winning idea.

The war has accomplished one thing. It has made every newspaper reader an expert on geography.

When Secretary Knox predicts that the Japs will come back to the Solomons, he means other Japs.

Was She Unnatural?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I used to know a woman who wouldn't talk about her children.

She'd be at a party and friends would ask:

"Well, how are the children?"

People seem to think there's a law compelling them to ask that question of all mothers.

But this mother never paid any attention. She'd say they were "fine"—even if they weren't—even if they had bad colds or bruised knees or had been kicking up a horrible row as she was leaving the house.

She did not want to talk them in public—and so she didn't!

So sometimes people talked about HER. They thought her "very strange".

A very mushy mother once suggested that the other woman was really "unnatural" and didn't love her children, didn't enjoy them, wasn't happy with them.

The woman who said that loved her children so slavishly that she hardly dared let them go from her sight. She worried every moment they were away and when she went to a show she'd dart out three times to telephone home—and she turned pale whenever a fire engine went down her street. Because she loved her children and was always talking about them, she thought that other woman didn't love hers.

Well, she couldn't have been more mistaken. The woman who wouldn't talk about her children when she was away from them loved them passionately. She had four and wanted more. They loved them all together and loved them separately. But she knew they weren't adult. She knew they weren't quite her equals. She was intensely interested in their growth, she enjoyed their intelligence and good looks and loved every trick of their characters.

She wouldn't have traded any of them for any other children in the world. She was glad she had them and looked forward eagerly to the time when they were grown. But she knew that right then they were NOT mature. They were cute little undeveloped, fascinating creatures who needed her care and attention and love but were not yet companions.

So why talk about them in company when she wanted to talk about the gossip and travail of the grown-up world, all the traffic and trivia and tragedy of humanity. . . . She wasn't only a MOTHER—she was a WOMAN and she knew it. She had other functions than preserving the race for another generation and she insisted on enjoying those functions as a civilized and intelligent person.

I think she's the kind of mother every modern woman should be!

War Production Controls Overlap, Sullivan Explains

By MARK SULLIVAN

What is said here is confined to one limited phase of our war effort, the production of the more important war materials, planes, tanks, guns and the like.

And what is said here is on the authority of persons who know this field well, are equipped to have good judgment about it, and have no bias for or against the Administration.

The judgment of these persons is that production in this field is going reasonably well, much better than ever before, and that the public need have no serious concern about it. To give this assurance is about all that can be done for the public. For the public cannot possibly familiarize itself with either the facts, or the principles involved, or the personalities engaged in the work.

For example: An immense step toward sound practice was taken recently when the principle of "priorities" was abandoned, the principle of "allocations" substituted. But how many of the public can know, or have the time to learn, just what is the meaning of those words, or the effect of the change. The public will have to take it on faith, from someone in whom they have confidence, that priorities was a wrong practice, allocations the right one.

News Overemphasized

News about this field consumes more newspaper space and radio time than is in proportion to the public's interest. Because most of such news originates in Washington, because Washington contains and knows the personalities involved, such news has, in Washington, the status of village gossip. Because such news frequently involves differences of opinion between highly placed persons, frequently described as "a clash," the tendency is to overemphasize it.

The latest burst of news about this subject began at, or was expanded by, a White House press conference. It was one of those conferences which President Roosevelt opens by saying he has nothing particular to announce, and waiting for questions. After some queries on various subjects, there was one about a change in the headship of plane production, and whether this function is to be in civilian control, or in control of the armed forces. The president replied, in effect, that there was no clash, nor anything except such an ordinary and necessary adjustment as must frequently take place. Facing interested listeners, and finding it enjoyable to satisfy their interest, Mr. Roosevelt went on at some length. The ensuing radio flashes and newspaper headlines had an atmosphere, I think more dramatic than, and out of proportion to, the importance the incident actually had.

Civilians Make Draft

True, there is difference of opinion between civilian officials, and those in the armed forces; and this difference involves a principle. The American tradition is suspicious of intrusion of the military into civilian matters. This suspicion expresses itself in the fact that the heads of the army and navy—that is, the cabinet secretaries heading the two forces—are always civilians. It expresses itself also in a detail of the draft. Persons who come in contact with the draft, as practically all do, may have noticed that never does the army come into a home or a community, and order a man into uniform. Always, the draftee is chosen by civilians, a draft board made up of his neighbors, who send him to the army. The army tells civilian boards what it needs, the civilian boards supply the need.

By analogy, it is the function of the armed forces to say how many planes they need, and what kinds; and it is the function of the civilian War Production Board to supply what the armed forces need. With this separation of functions, the armed forces would not disagree. Hardly any responsible military official would undertake to assert or control the immense and rigorous controls over civilian industry, and civilian life, which are involved in production of war materials. Yet the two functions, need and supply, cannot be confined in separate water-tight compartments. They overlap, and from time to time must be adjusted.

Needs Change

Also, the function of need changes frequently and drastically. Conducting a war is like playing a bridge game. As in one of the need is sometimes for clubs, sometimes for diamonds, so in war the need is sometimes for maximum planes, other times maximum ships. In the adjustments thus forced between need and supply, differences of judgment arise, and probably always will. To adjust such differences is an ABC detail of the art of administration, occasioning no serious difficulty to men competent in that art.

What is said here is by no means to say that our production mechanism is all it ought to be. Improvement is needed, and is under way. Constantly, by inexorable force of necessity, abler men move toward the top.

Also, and decidedly, what is said here about a single and limited phase of war production does not apply to the whole field of war administration. In some parts of the field—rationing, food control, manpower administration, labor relations—there are gross defects of system, serious misfits in personnel. These defects deserve the criticism they are receiving.

A Dangerous Assumption

From the Valley Register, of Middletown

Too many people assume that an all-out war has to be fought by an all-out dictator government. This is not true. And it could never be true because modern war requires gigantic production and government are not producers. At best, they can force the citizen to produce under compulsion, after the citizen has failed to do so for one reason or another.

America is outproducing Europe's slaves because free men are doing the job. If they are allowed to finish the war as such, there is not the slightest doubt as to the outcome. Victory will be ours. Our industries are rolling as an unheated-of pace. But they could do even more if bureaucrats and the people would keep mines and factories going full blast. Let government place the orders under proper supervision—American industry will do the rest.

Our armament and plane makers, our utilities, our railroads have proved they can accomplish miracles. The oil industry has been ready for months to begin production of synthetic rubber, awaiting only the "go" signal from officialism. Our metal and timber resources are being utilized to the fullest by the ingenuity of private management, and the coal industry has provided the nation with the biggest stock pile of fuel in history.

All of these things have been and are being done by private citizens. They, and not the bureaucrats, should get the credit.

Time to Start Thinking

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — The Italian people literally have three-quarters of a million Nazi guns at their heads.

Sixty or more German divisions have been pushed into Mussolini's land by Hitler, to ward off as long as possible the collapse of the Fascist regime and the revolution that would bring the first break for peace.

Consequently, these recent rumors out of Turkey and elsewhere, suggesting that the old Marshal Badoglio is already preparing to oust Il Duce, have not whipped up much expectation of immediate action here.

True, Italy should be the first to break. A strong revolutionary movement is in hiding awaiting the first chance to take over. It would have pushed the feeble Mussolini off his palace seat long ago, except that such a step would only bring Hitler's guns into action and crush the revolution prematurely.

So it looks to those who watch matters closely here that the Allied nations will have to take Sicily and then land troops in Italy before the signal can be given.

Many Aircraft Shifted

What Hitler has left in the way of air power, you now see facing us on the Mediterranean front.

Secretly, he called in everything he had of consequence from every front when he saw all Africa about to fall as a result of our invasion. He would not give Rommel enough air support to stop the British attack in Egypt, but when we moved into the western Mediterranean, he went into action.

Some planes were taken from the Russian front. A large store he had accumulated in Rumania for a threatened attack on Turkey were all called in. His sky fleets in Greece and Crete were likewise summoned. All have assumed positions in Sicily and Italy for what may now against unreasonable searches and seizures, free to enjoy the other benefits of the most prized citizenship in all this world—what good does it do him to be free in the enjoyment of those rights if he is not to be free in the choice of the way he shall earn his living?

If he really wants to work for Montgomery Ward, he has to keep in good standing in his union—not because he has agreed to any such condition, not because Montgomery Ward has imposed any such condition upon him, but only because the president has ordered Montgomery Ward to impose and enforce such a condition as "essential in the interest of our war effort."

And if this is a good rule for Montgomery Ward, if it is a rule which "our war effort" requires to be imposed on this one company, it is an equally good rule to apply to all other employers and all other workers, so that if a Montgomery Ward worker loses his job there for failure to maintain his union membership, he cannot escape the same compulsion if he seeks work with another employer.

What are our war aims? Why do "130 million Americans who hold no great office and whose words are listened to by nobody" think we are fighting this war, and what do they think we are going to get out of it? They had better start thinking and they may wake up and discover that victory will mean something greatly different from what they have thought it would mean.

become the greatest air battle of the war.

Progress Retarded

That is one thing which has retarded our progress through Tunisia. He could fly even his short range fighter planes in from other fronts, but ours had to come by boat from Britain. (Only our bombers came via air.)

His gasoline stores could also be flown, but ours had to come by transport. Naturally, in the face of this quickly massed resistance, we had to wait to gather in our full strength before plunging into a tremendous air fight.

Also Hitler has managed to get a few transports across to Africa with submarine and air protection. He has even succeeded in withdrawing troops from the far-away Caucasus front and bringing them to Italy.

But our troops and the British outnumber him three to one or more. We will win.

German Disaster May Grow

The Russian communiques sound like the back of the German army has been broken at Stalingrad and annihilation of Hitler's armies on that front might possibly be complete.

No one, however, ever knows how much Russia has, or how true are the Red communiques. Official statements on both sides on that front have been notoriously exaggerated.

If the Soviet claims of killed and captured have not been repetitious, certainly a final decline of German military morale in Russia would be indicated.

But it is wiser to be cautious and expect that the Germans can form a straight line across the bend of the Don river. Such a winter line is physically feasible.

However, if the Soviets get as far as Rostov, they can cut the Caucasus armies of Hitler completely off from their base and extend the Nazi disaster to proportions which will stimulate talk of surrender.

Resistance Appears Broken

From all these factual considerations, it is evident German military power of resistance is being broken. The Axis cannot win the war.

Hitler knows it as well as we do—perhaps better. (He knows, for instance, the extent to which British and American bombings have limited his plane production, a matter at which we can only guess.)

The road to victory and peace is therefore open and the way clear ahead.

If the top of the hill will come quickly if revolutions get started in Italy and Germany, but the lives of the officials who have the guns in those countries depend on how long they can hold those guns, not only against us but against their discouraged and dissenting elements.

Time To Strike Harder

In the face of defeat, they will hang on as long as possible. Rumors based on plain expectations, therefore, may be premature, may lead us to ease up.

Clearly, this is the time for us to strike harder and faster. Our offensive plans must be rushed into double-quick. Things we contemplated doing next spring must be done now. Production and deliveries must be keyed higher.

We can pray that collapse of German arms will bring peace tomorrow, next week, next month, or as soon as possible, but we must pass the ammunition faster to effect the result.

Salary Limit Rule Penalizes Workers, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Some-one has misled Jimmy Byrnes—director of economic stabilization—and, incidentally, many other persons in America have been misled into believing that only persons with a salary of $67,200 are affected by the salary limitation decree issued by the White House.

The truth is that anybody with a salary of $46,800 might be affected under certain circumstances; such a taxpayer may be compelled to give back money to the treasury so as to conform to the regulation.

The confusion arising is so great that it is understood that the Treasury itself is considering the issuance of an explanatory regulation which will indicate that persons with a salary range from $46,800 to $67,200 may find themselves affected by the salary restriction and required to give money back to the treasury.

Mr. Byrnes in a recent speech said:

"The so-called $25,000 salary limitation actually affects only those having a salary in excess of $67,200. The tax on that salary will reduce the net income to $25,000."

But what was forgotten evidently was the effect of allowable deduction on the result. Thus, a married person receiving a salary of $46,800 and having two dependents, with allowable deductions equal to ten per cent of his gross salary, will find that under the new 1942 revenue law his total normal tax, surtax and victory tax amounts to $21,792 which leaves $25,000 after taxes. This excess of $8 will have to be returned to the Treasury.

Another Example

Take the man who has a salary of $50,000, and again allowing for deductions amounting to about ten per cent or $5,000, and the total tax is $23,881, which leaves the taxpayer a remainder of $26,119. But this is $1,119 in excess of the $25,000 which he may retain under the Byrnes formula. He will have to give that to the Treasury unless the regulations are changed.

Now it is true that a person with a $67,200 salary cannot retain more than $25,000. But it is apparent that when certain deductions allowable under the revenue laws are taken, the net amount remaining might exceed $25,000. Any excess would have to be given to the Treasury. So as the sum of allowable deductions increases, the chances grow that the taxpayer will be compelled to give the Treasury more money, so as to have not more than $25,000 left after taxes.

Workers Are Hit

It is estimated that approximately 5,400 persons in the United States receive salaries in excess of $56,800.

The number of persons with dividends in excess of $46,800 was about 5,234 in the year 1939, and the present estimate for 1942 made by competent statisticians is that the number is about 8,000.

Thus, one set of citizens can retain far more money than another set, even though the amounts received are the same. The people who work are penalized. The people who derive money from investments are not penalized. Congress didn't authorize either group to be punished, but if punishment is to be meted, Mrs. Roosevelt is right in declaring that both groups ought to be treated alike.

Incidentally, Mrs. Roosevelt, on her return from her visit to Britain, stated that "practically no one" in Britain has more than $21,000 left after payment of taxes. This might lead some observers to believe that Britain has a salary ceiling. This is not true.

Britain More Liberal

In Britain anybody can earn as much as he wishes and the only way his salary can be cut is by a tax law. There is no barrier to the earning of $1,000,000 a year or deriving that sum from investments if the opportunity can be found. Incidentally, in Britain the amount remaining to the taxpayer on a $1,000,000 income is $38,420, and that $1,000,000 is net income only after many allowable deductions have been made—Britain's laws being more liberal than ours.

If the allowable deductions in both the United Kingdom and America were to amount to twenty per cent, respectively, the net cash retained by the British taxpayer out of a gross salary income of $67,200 would be $14,074, while in the United States the taxpayer, because of the salary limitation, would retain net cash of only $11,560. And yet it is being widely stated that Britain's system is more drastic than ours.

Peace Stocks Do Well in Market, But War Leaders Have a Fair Day

Brightening Picture on Battlefronts Helps Trading

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Selected industrials in the peace category did well in today's stock market and war issues never were under any particular pressure but many leaders failed to do much on the up-side. The brightening picture on all battlefronts served as a moderate buying argument in most cases when business was resumed after the Thanksgiving recess. Wall street, however, was a bit disappointed that the list was not more responsive. Tax selling again was a restraining factor.

Irregularity ruled at the start. Dealings were slow during the greater part of the proceedings but gains were in the majority at the close. There were generally no fractions, although there were a few jumps of 1 to 3 points on meager turnovers.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was up 2 of a point at 99.9. Transfers of 524,770 shares compared with 565,470 Wednesday. A special offering of 15,000 Hudson Bay Mining at 21 aided volume.

A stronger to the ticker tape made its appearance in the shape of 10 shares of Mahoning Coal Railroad at $300 a share. Its last previous sale was at $515 in 1935. Deducting dividends of $229 a share during the interim made today's price a net gain of $14.

Notwithstanding lacadaical proceedings, new tops for the year were posted for Commercial Investment Trust, Coca-Cola, Eastman Kodak, and Montgomery Ward. International Telephone equaled its 1942 high with an advance of 1/4 at 7.

In the losing section were Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Chesapeake & Ohio, Texas Co., Phillips Morris, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, Phelps Dodge, Consolidated Edison and Public Service of N. J.

Improved in the curb were Humble Oil, Gulf Oil, Aluminum of America, Electric Bond & Share and Sherman Williams. Losers included N. J. Zinc, Pennroad, American Cyanamid "B" and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. The aggregate was 102.310 shares versus 121,680 in the preceding full session.

Recovery tendencies developed in several sections of the bond market, encouraged by a broader demand for rails and continued buying in a selected group of foreign dollar loans.

There were numerous laggards throughout the list, however, resulting in only minor changes in the averages. The twenty rails in the Associated Press index advanced 1 of a point, the industrials added as much and the ten foreign issues touched a new 1942 peak at 53.3. The utilities declined 2 at 53.3. The low-yields held unchanged. Sales of $7,253,300, par value, compared with $8,064,900 on Wednesday.

Chicago Grain Prices

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (AP)—Liquidation of December contracts which become deliverable next Tuesday took the steam out of a slow grain price advance today.

After gains of as much as 1/4 cent had been posted in the wheat and corn pits, 1/4 cent in oats and 1/4 in rye, the market backed down late in the session. At one time rye contracts were the highest in a month while deferred wheat deliveries were the best in almost 2 months.

Hope of Eradicating Tuberculosis Lies in Its Detection in Children

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"The ABC of Tuberculosis" is a sound magazine article by Dr. Joseph D. Wassergut in the October issue of "The American Mercury." He cites the following case as illustrative of the modern technique used to detect tuberculosis among school children:

"M. S., an 8-year-old school girl, had a slight cough which lasted the greater part of one winter. She appeared run-down and played less actively than other children of her own age. Occasional night sweats had been noted for one month.

On examination, the child appeared undernourished and was ten per cent underweight. Chest examination was entirely negative. A tuberculin patch test, however, was positive and an x-ray of the chest was taken. This revealed pulmonary tuberculosis of the childhood type.

The child was sent to a sanatorium.

um, where she improved almost at once, and was discharged at the end of ten months. She had gained eleven pounds in weight."

Test at School Age

The hope of eradicating tuberculosis lies in its detection in children of school age. We know that tuberculosis always begins in childhood. We further know that it is cured most easily and certainly by treating it in the school-age period. The ideal thing is for every school child all over the country, at about the age of eight—whether there are symptoms of tuberculosis or not—to have a patch test with tuberculin and if this is positive, to follow it up with a more complete examination. In many communities this is being done; it should be universal.

The patch test is performed by applying to the clean skin and adhesive plaster so constructed that it holds tightly against the skin a given amount of matter prepared from tuberculin.

Tuberculin is a product of the activity of the growth of the germ of tuberculosis, but diluted and given in this fashion it has never done anyone any harm. Formerly with children tuberculin was used by scratching the skin and applying the tuberculin to the scratch. It has been found, however, that the unbroken skin gives a reaction in this fashion which is just as reliable as the scratch test.

Indicates Presence of Disease

Forty-eight hours after the patch is put on the adhesive plaster is removed and if the skin is red and swollen at the place where the tuberculin was in contact, it indicates that there is a possibility of active tuberculosis. The tuberculin may be quiescent or healed—which is the question to be determined by further examination with the x-ray and other means. The test is of little value after the age of 15 because nearly everybody has had some tuberculosis by that time.

Dr. Wassergut states the following as the modern conception of tuberculosis:

1. Insist that the milk you drink be pasteurized and obtained from tuberculin negative cows.

2. Demand that individuals who have tubercle germs in their system be hospitalized or segregated in a sanatorium.

3. Persons engaged in the handling of children—school-teachers, domestics and nurses—should have at least one chest x-ray.

4. Children should have a tuberculin test at some time between the ages of 11 and 18.

Questions and Answers

B. M.—Exactly how serious is a systolic murmur and is it cause for army rejection?

Answer: There are all kinds of systolic heart murmurs of all grades of seriousness. In general it may be said that a systolic murmur at the apex of the heart in late childhood, and early adult life is probably not very serious in so far as it contains any threat to life or activity. In my opinion, however, all cases of systolic heart murmur should be rejected for the Army because nobody knows how much disability they will cause under conditions of extreme strain and stress.

Parents Should Train Their Sons In Responsibility

Youth Who Enters Armed Forces Needs To Be Self Reliant

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Fortunate the youth, on entering the armed forces, who has learned self-reliance physically and emotionally. He will not suffer terrible homesickness while in camp. Nor will he find it so hard to see him go. It is the youth and parents who have been too tightly tied together who will suffer most.

Even the youth who will be called in a month or so might have these difficulties eased, if in the meanwhile he will spend a few nights or week-ends away from home and if his parents will marshal their best efforts to hold up their chins and resolve to show him courage.

If you have a son soon to enter the armed forces, who has been tied too close to your heartstrings, how will he adjust himself to the new experience will depend largely on how well he supposes you will learn to get along without him. If he supposes you will feel sorry for him he might feel sorry for himself. If he supposes you are going to fret and weep as you think of him or talk of him, he may have many hours of discomfort. But if he knows you are brave and are resolved to take it on the chin; if he knows you will get growing comfort in awareness of his great service to his country, then his morale will gradually become better and better.

Write Cheerful Letters

In your letters to him betray no grief nor anxiety, nor ever tell him how he has been missed. Fill your letters to him with hope and cheer. Prove to him you have more courage than he ever dreamed you had. For the most part we parents at home make the morale of our sons will have in training camp and on the fighting front.

How important for parents of boys in their early teens to discipline themselves in their emotional relations to these sons during the next few years and so to guide these sons as to cultivate increasing self-reliance and responsibility in them. As never before, every parent, even of the tot, should see added reasons in these times to help these growing children learn to stand on their own two feet, physically and emotionally.

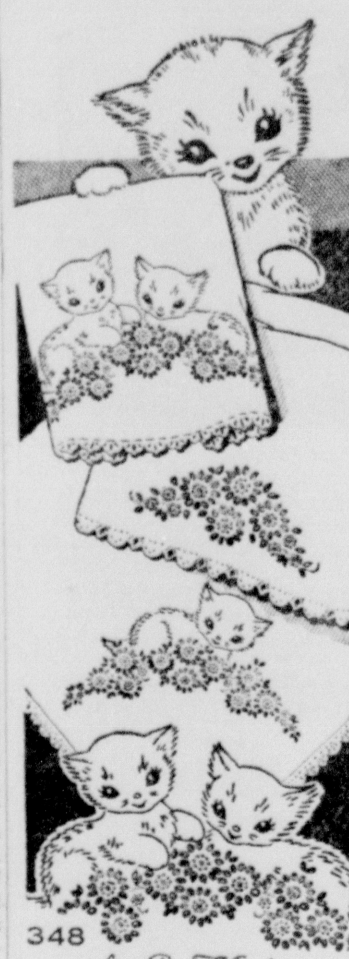

Many a parent whose son will enter the armed forces in a few months or years is inclined to do more for him than ever before, to lavish more luxuries on him now, and to rob him more than ever of responsibility. While you and I can understand why these parents are tempted to do so, we also know that such treatment is harmful to their youths.

All else being equal, that boy in his teens is best prepared to serve his country in the armed forces tomorrow or a few years hence, who is now learning reasonable self-denials and self-discipline, who can be induced to follow a well-planned program of study, work and play up to the time when his actual service shall begin. About the worst possible thing for any youth to do is to grow lax and indifferent toward whatever he is engaged in now.

Army Wives Who Are Prospective Mothers Ask Aid

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Copyright, 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Perhaps I rushed in with a great courage when the angels a few weeks ago when I told army wives, who expecting a visit from the stork, that their Uncle Sam would see to things through Army Emergency Relief.

However, I qualified this statement by saying they would be taken into government hospitals for the period of confinement, only if there was room. It seems, however, that in certain sections of the country hospitals are more crowded by sick and wounded soldiers than in other areas, and that at the present time, West Coast hospitals are taxed to capacity with service men.

Wives Are Worried

Soldiers' wives in California have written to tell me they have been unable to obtain hospitalization, that their husbands are in far-off corners of the earth and the approaching blessed event has them considerably worried.

Hospitalization for army wives goes through the Service Command, which in some areas stretches over several states. In California, for instance, the officer in charge of such hospitalization is Major General Kenyon Joyce, commanding general of the Ninth Service Command, Fort Douglas, Utah. Army wives in California who find that local hospitals are too crowded to take care of them should write to General Joyce. He may be able to help them.

Amendment Would Help

A private's salary barely stretches over the simplest living, especially when a baby is expected. Doctors' bills and hospital costs, not to mention incidentals for the baby, no not figure in monthly budget.

In twenty-four states a Children's Bureau program has been started to provide such aid, but unless $1-500,000 is made available through an amendment to Social Security act, it is doomed to failure.

We need babies for peace as well as war. We need them for a better and saner world, and here's wishing the best of luck to those behind the amendment to the Social Security act, which would give service men's wives free hospitalization.

Alabama was the Indian name of a tribe in southern Alabama—a Muskogean tribe. Alabama is from the Choctaw words alba aya mule, meaning, "I open or clear the thickets."

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

WAAC EXPANDED BY EXECUTIVE ORDER!

New facilities and enlarged opportunities for training as WAAC to be increased six times original size

"The Army last year announced it needed the knowledge, skill, and special training of the women of the nation for the war effort, and the women of the nation are responding in thousands by joining the WAAC. There are scores of jobs, from typing to driving, which the Army feels women can do to release men for combat duty—and all the women ask, when they sign up, is, 'Give us a chance to help any way we can!'"
—OVETA CULP HOBBY, Director, WAAC

By executive order of The President, the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps is authorized to recruit to the full strength of 150,000 authorized by Congress. And December 1st, another training center opens in Daytona Beach, Florida.

The WAAC is giving valuable service to the Army. The list of essential duties it is performing grows constantly. Never before in U. S. history have there been such opportunities for alert, patriotic women—opportunities to serve our country in its hour of need—opportunities for advancement, training and experience which will be valuable in the post-war world.

If you long to do your share in America's drive to victory, join this new, expanding corps now. See the partial list of jobs below. See the pay scale and ranks which now are equivalent to the Army's. Enrollment is open to women 21 to 44, inclusive, regardless of race, creed or color—all officers are commissioned from the ranks.

Every WAAC knows her contribution is helping the nation directly, personally—her work behind the lines, here and overseas, releases a soldier for the battlefield.

Here is your chance to do the work of a soldier so that he may fight. For full information see your local U. S. Army Recruiting and Induction Station today.

MEET IN MIDLAND

MIDLAND, Nov. 25.—Ivan Wilson, Midland, chairman of the Southern States Midland Advisory Board, will preside when the board holds a conference at White Way Inn, Lonaconing, Monday evening, at 7:30 o'clock.

They will make a study of rural community needs, giving particular attention to the problems involved in getting produce from the farm to town and supplies from town to the farm. Also, they will review the local co-operative program.

Speakers will include Charles T. Clise of Midland and L. O. Brumback of Winchester, a representative of Southern States Co-operative.

Members of the board are Wilson, Thomas Crase, and James Stakem, Midland; Charles Harvey and Vernon Loar, Frostburg, and Harmon Sutherland, Barton, Md.

SIX-GUN CUPID

John P. Gamasky, of Reading, Pa., is shown entering the Federal Building in Philadelphia, to answer the charges of kidnapping preferred by his bride, the former Peggy Anne Kelly, secretary to a state official. Miss Kelly says that Gamasky kidnapped her at the point of a gun, drove her to Bel Air, Md., and forced her to marry him, keeping the gun pointed at her in his pocket through the wedding ceremony.

Rationing Information

The local War Price Rationing Board announces that all babies born on and after December 15 must be registered for their ration book within thirty days of birth.

Anyone in Hardy county not now having a War Ration Book L, known as the sugar book, should get one by Dec. 15. A person must possess book number 1 in order to be eligible for No. 2 when it is issued. There are a number of people in the county who have never applied for War Ration Book 1 because they had stocks of sugar on hand when rationing went into effect. It will be necessary, however, for them to register now because the book will also be used for coffee rationing.

In regard to gasoline, the board wishes to remind people that all gasoline ration books upon their expiration dates must be returned to the local office.

Beginning Sunday, November 29, 1942, and through Sunday, January 3, 1943, an eligible consumer can buy one pound of roasted coffee or one pound of any mixture or compound containing coffee upon surrender of stamp No. 27 from War Ration Book 1, which is your sugar book. Stamp No. 27 is used as the first coffee stamp because of the convenience in detaching it. Number 28 will be the next valid coffee stamp. Each stamp will be good for the purchase of one pound of coffee during the period of validity of the stamp as announced by the Office of Price Administration. Validity periods for other coffee stamps will be announced from time to time.

Anyone holding War Ration Book 1 whose age is shown as 15 years or older, is eligible to buy coffee.

Christmas Seal
Sale Begins in
Hardy CountyEffort Will Be Made To Raise $300, County
Chairman Says

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Nov. 27.—John Mathias, county chairman of the Christmas Seal Sale of the National Tuberculosis Association, announces that the seals went on sale in Hardy county today. This is the thirty-sixth annual sale and is being held in every section of the United States.

The nation-wide goal is $8,000,000 and Hardy's quota, raised from the amount contributed last year, is $300. Last year $275 was raised.

Letters containing seals will be sent out to 500 families or individuals in Hardy county and if each recipient would send back $1, the amount raised would be much more satisfactory.

From the amount raised, sixty-five per cent remains in the county for the prevention and control of tuberculosis. A part of this amount goes to bring the mobile x-ray unit to the county which makes it possible to detect tuberculosis in the very early stages when it is more easily controlled.

Displays Pictures
Of Men in Service

In the window of Arno Friddle's drug store are sixty good reasons why Hardy countians were proud and humble Thanksgiving day and why they should invest in more bonds and stamps. Mrs. Friddle has gathered pictures from the families of some of the boys in the service and placed them on display. Naturally, she has not been able to see all in the county but wherever possible, she has asked for pictures. The sixty boys whose pictures are shown are:

Commissioners Expected To Fill Jobs on Tuesday

Board Will Meet To Make Appointments to County Posts

Next Tuesday morning, the newly elected board of county commissioners will hold its first meeting of the new four-year term, and is expected to make a number of appointments.

The board consists of C. N. Wilkinson, Jr., of this city; Simon W. Green, of Frostburg, and James Holmes, of Lonaconing. Both Holmes and Green were re-elected, while Wilkinson succeeds Patrick J. Stakem, Democratic appointee who completed the unexpired term of the late Harry W. Matheny.

While appointments include a number of clerks, office personnel and minor assignments, there are several major jobs, usually regarded as "political plums". However, reliable reports indicate there are few new applicants for the various assignments, due to the fact that most people are working now and, unlike recent election years, not many are interested in political assignments. Reappointments in most cases are expected around the court house and other county buildings, however, a few changes will doubtless be made.

The most important appointments include that of tax collector, attorney to the board, county physician, superintendent of the county insane asylum, superintendent of the county alma house, health inspector, county road engineer, supervisor of assessments, county auditor, county health officer and county physician.

There are three tax collectors named, one each in Districts one, two and three. District number one is the major appointment and includes all of Cumberland. This collector also has supervision of the county tax collector's office. The other two collectors are named for Frostburg and Lonaconing.

Constables in all parts of the county must be named. Clerks and office personnel in the commissioners' office must be appointed. Three health nurses will be chosen, as will also the maintenance crews of the court house and the custodian of the county building on Union street. The commissioners also name two clerks and a bailiff for Trial Magistrates court here.

None of the commissioners have made any public commitments regarding appointments, although it is rumored around the court house that Lucien C. Radcliffe, retiring sheriff, will be named tax collector here to succeed Alban C. Thompson.

Neither the sheriff or tax collector can, under existing laws, serve two successive terms in the same office. It is also reported that Horace P. Whitworth, Westernport attorney who was defeated for the office of attorney general, might be offered the appointment of attorney to the board of commissioners succeeding Walter C. Capper.

There is a vacancy for the post of superintendent at the insane asylum and it is reported there are several applicants. Few other new names are expected to appear in the list of assignments.

John Macy Is Home On Leave following Convoy Duty

John S. Macy, Braddock road, who is in the United States Merchant Marine, is home on leave after completing a five months trip in a convoy to South Africa and up into the Indian ocean near the island of Madagascar, which was recently captured by the United Nations. Macy said five of the ships in the convoy were torpedoed by submarines.

The District Council of Townsend Clubs will meet in the Queen City hotel, room 37, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to arrange ways and means of advertising the new Townsend bill.

The bill calls for national security insurance for all citizens, from birth to death, with pensions at 60 years of age and makes provisions for disability.

New Yoke Style

MARIAN MARTIN

First choice for the busy-day wardrobe is Pattern 9251 by Marian Martin. It gives exceptional figure flattery. Your width-across is nicely broken up by a surplice neckline, a vestee-like pointed yoke and a slimming skirt panel. Contrast for the collar and yoke is smart.

Pattern 9251 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires three and seven-eighths yards thirty-five inch fabric.

Sew-your-own and save with our Winter Pattern Book for guidance. Styles for dress-up, sports, school, work—each available in the simplest, most accurate pattern you've ever used. Pattern Book, ten cents.

You Women Who Suffer From

HOT FLASHES then CHILLY FEELINGS

If you—like so many women between the ages of 38 and 52—suffer from hot flashes, weak, dizzy, nervous feelings, distress of "irregularities", are blue at times—due to the functional middle age period in a woman's life—try taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. It's the best known medicine you can buy that's made especially for women.

Pinkham's Compound is famous to relieve such distress. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such annoying symptoms. It also is a fine stomachic tonic.

Thousands upon thousands of women—rich and poor alike—have reported benefits. Time and again Lydia Pinkham's Compound has proved some women's happiest days often can be during their "40's". Follow label directions. Worth trying!

TWO FORCING PASSES
THERE ARE two extremely contrasting kinds of forcing passes. In the case of each, the pass by one partner practically compels the other to take action in the form of either a bid or a double. But there the resemblance ends. One kind of forcing pass indicates to your partner that you think the opponents' contract can be set and you want him to decide whether your side can more profitably try a higher contract. The other indicates you are not sure whether it can be beaten and want him to decide between playing against it and sacrificing.

Pass	1♥	2♣	2♠
3♦	4♥	Pass	Pass
5♦	Pass	Pass	Dbl

There we have both kinds of forcing pass on the same deal. South showed, by his pass of 4-Hearts, that he had pretty fair defensive values, even against the terrific distribution shown by East's jump bid to game. If he had possessed weak defense, he should have sacrificed at once over the vulnerable game, since he knew about his partner's fit. However, his failure to double indicated he was not unduly strong on the defense, and put it up to North.

With only one apparent trick-taker against the hearts—and that in his side's own long suit of diamonds—he reckoned that 4-Hearts could be made, so properly sacrificed. West's duty was very clear after East passed the 5-Diamonds. All players at the table knew that bid was a sacrifice, virtually certain to be beaten, so West had to decide whether to double it or try for 5-Hearts. With better distribution and worse honor strength, he should have made the bid. But with his hand as it was, all he could do was double—not on his own values, but mainly on what East had shown.

Everybody bid right, as 4-Hearts could have been made and 5-Diamonds got set two.

If West bids 1-Spade, East 2-Diamonds, West 2-Hearts and East 3-No Trumps on this deal, what is South's soundest lead, and why?

HE MUST BE STRONGER WHEN YOUR own hand is extremely weak, and the opponents have bid to only a game, your partner is almost certain to have a pretty fair hand. Your best defense then is to open the suit which you think will help him to make the best use of his cards. Forget trying to make your own produce their best results. They are unimportant compared to his, especially if the contract is No Trump. You probably will be unable to regain the lead in your own best suit, so try to hit his, with a short-suit lead.

Disregarding two rules of sound leading, South opened his diamond 6. In the first place, it is usually bad to lead into a suit bid at your right, particularly if it is the only suit bid by that player. More important, though, South's hand was so weak that he figured never to be in the lead again after the suit got set up, as he had nothing which looked like a side entry. East was canny. Reading that South would never have opened that suit with only four cards of it, he counted North for only two and South for five. So, wanting the lead in his own hand, to try the heart finesse, he took that trick with the 10. Promptly he finessed the heart J and lost to the K, then boldly won the return diamond with the A. Then he led the spade 5 toward the K, knowing that if South had the spade A his own diamond Q would stop its suit.

But North had the spade A as he hoped. With no diamond to return, he tried a club. East thereupon scored four tricks in that suit, three in hearts and one in spades, giving him ten all told, one over his contract.

If South makes the right lead, of the spade 10—bound to be his partner's suit—there is no way to keep the defenders from taking two tricks in spades and the two red kings, holding the declarer to exactly nine tricks.

Plans Outlined For New Victory Fund Campaign

Sale of Government Securities for Prosecution of War Is Discussed

Bankers, industrialists and business leaders of Allegany and Garrett counties gathered at the All Ghan Country Club last night and listened to a discussion of plans for the sale of three new government securities for prosecution of the war, a sales drive on which will be started Monday.

The plans were outlined after a seafood dinner, by John Redwood, Jr., of Baltimore, a representative of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va., who came here for the purpose at the instance of the Victory Fund committee of Region I, which comprises the two counties.

Following Redwood's talk, there was a question and answer period which brought into discussion many phases of the campaign and the sales outlets for the three different types of securities.

Three issues offered as heretofore noted in press reports, the issues to be sold are:

The Series E-1943 treasury certificates of indebtedness dated and bearing interest of seven-eighths of one per cent from December 1, 1942, which mature December 1, 1943.

The one and three-quarter per cent treasury bonds of 1948, dated and bearing interest from December 1, 1942, and due December 15, 1948, which are redeemable at the option of the United States at par and accrued interest on and after December 15, 1943.

The two and one-half per cent treasury bonds of 1936-68, dated and bearing interest from December 1, 1942, and due December 15, 1968, which are redeemable at the option of the United States at par and accrued interest on and after December 15, 1963.

Charles A. Piper, president of the Liberty Trust Company, presided at the meeting in his capacity of county chairman of the Victory Fund committee.

Nine billion dollars' worth of these issues is to be sold within the next three weeks and the need for selling them was characterized by Piper as an essential part of the civilian share in the big war program.

Part of War Effort

This, he said, is because we are in the war "up to our necks," with four millions of our men now in the fighting services and plans going forward for increasing the number to seven and a half or possibly nine millions by the end of 1943; and with practically every major industrial plant in the country being now "all out" for the production of war materials.

The sources to be tapped for this new war money were listed as the current national income, moneys in the hands of state and local governments, which cannot be employed until the war is ended; increased cash in businesses brought in by enforced decrease of inventories; the money rendered idle through building restrictions and the incomes and accumulated funds of fraternal organizations, labor unions, endowment funds and the like.

Those attending the dinner meeting were:

E. S. Burke, president Kelly Springfield Engineering company; H. A. Pitzer, cashier First National bank; Mayor Thomas F. Conlon; County Commissioner James Holmes, of Lonaconing; County Commissioner S. W. Green, Frostburg; William Jenkins, president Frostburg National bank; W. B. Yates, treasurer Fidelity Savings bank, Frostburg; Harold W. Smith, secretary Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Old Radio Sets Are Wanted Here

Amateur Radio Club To Re-build Them for War Emergency Service

A call has been issued by the Western Maryland Amateur Radio Club for persons having old radio receivers to donate them to the club. They will be rebuilt into small radio transmitters for use in the vital link of home defense communications, club officials said.

The small transmitters will be used in the club's effort as a unit of the War Emergency Radio Service. The scarcity of component parts essential in the building of these transmitters makes it necessary to rely solely on parts obtainable from old radios.

Old radios which are donated may never be used again by their owners due perhaps to some burned-out part, which can not be replaced at the present time, but other units in the sets can be used in assembling the war emergency apparatus.

Persons who wish to donate an unused radio to aid the war effort may do so by telephoning 2479 between noon and 5 p. m. Those who can not phone can mail a card to WERS, 708 Louisiana avenue, and the radio will be picked up by a club member. Wilfred A. Thompson, president of the club, and L. R. Jenkins, radio aide for WERS in this county, are optimistic in regard to the response so far to their appeal.

Harold W. Smith Again Heads Local Community Chest

Officers Re-elected and New Executive Members Named

Harold W. Smith was re-elected president of the Cumberland Community Chest last evening when the board of directors met to organize for the fiscal year. Smith has been president of the chest for the past ten years.

Other officers re-elected are Dr. Frank M. Wilson, vice-president; Harvey H. Weiss, treasurer and Roy W. Eves, secretary.

Members of the executive committee, in addition to the four officers were chosen, including Ralph C. Beard, Charles E. Bramble, James W. Bishop, Harold E. Naughton and Mrs. William M. Sommer. The retiring members of the executive committee included Charles L. Kopp, Clarence Lippel, Miles G. Thompson and J. William Grove.

In addition to the officers and other members of the executive committee, the board of directors of the chest includes the following members: E. S. Burke, Thomas F. Conlon, Mrs. Emma Everstine, Mrs. M. J. Fleming, Dr. A. H. Hawkins, Charles L. Kopp, Clarence Lippel, Clarence Litzberg, Tasker G. Lowndes, Mrs. S. Dodge Smith, W. Donald Smith, F. Allan Weatherholt, Mrs. George Zilch and Miles G. Thompson.

Officers reported that total receipts from 1942 pledges to November 27, amount to $41,685.99. This is seventy-seven per cent of the total subscribed. Receipts from 1942 pledges are only $1,000 less than 1941 receipts at the end of November, although the rate of 1942 collections is two per cent higher.

Various agencies reported nominal cash balances, with only current bills outstanding.

The executive committee of the chest meets once each month, usually on the first Wednesday of the month. The board of directors meets about four times a year, or as called by the president.

Fighting Men Expect Support From Civilians

Reasons Are Set Forth in Letter from Lieut. Col. J. P. Franklin

The American boys on the fighting fronts are expecting the folks back home to support them by freely and cheerfully buying the government war bonds to be sold the next three weeks, according to Lieut. Col. Joseph P. Franklin, of this city, popular physician who is now on duty somewhere in Europe.

The reasons why were set forth in a letter from Dr. Franklin read at the Victory Fund committee meeting last night at the All Ghan Country Club, at which plans for an intensive bond selling campaign were discussed.

"Have been trying to get to see the chief censor," Col. Franklin wrote, "so that I could write something to you about the sale of war bonds, but... there has been little time for anything else but my own job. I know from what I have heard, however, that you are doing a good job."

"I might say to you that we are all expecting those of you at home to support us financially in this thing, for we must first have the necessary supplies, such as ammunition, food, medical and hospital supplies and equipment; and then we must have ships to get them to us wherever we are. All of this takes money, and that means bonds and more bonds!"

"Certainly the old slogan of 'Give till it Hurts' should be changed to read 'Buy till it Hurts' for, after all, it's a business transaction and a good investment. I know some of our outfits in which every soldier, officer and enlisted man is buying bonds, and if they can be 100 per cent back of this thing both in money and life, then certainly those at home who surely are not undergoing the hardships that some of these poor devils are experiencing can even make a few meager sacrifices to save for themselves if such is necessary."

"I, personally, have faith in at least two things. One is that we will be victorious, and the other is that the people of Allegany county will not fail us. I have always been proud to say that I was a citizen of Allegany county (after I first arrived there almost fourteen years ago) and I'm sure that you will not give us reason to feel otherwise in this extreme emergency."

"Remember—WE'RE COUNTING ON YOU!"

NAVY NEEDS MEN FOR "SEABEES", RECRUITER SAYS

The United States Navy needs thousands of men for the "Seabees" which is the name given Construction Battalions, it was said yesterday by Chief Petty Officer George J. Carroll.

Immediate ratings from petty officer, third class, to chief petty officer are available for men experienced in practically all building, mechanical and construction trades if they are qualified. Carroll said that pay range in the "Seabees" ranges from $54 for seaman, second class to $126 for chief petty officer with extra allowances for men who have dependents, to provide ample support.

Men between the ages of 17 and 50 are eligible for naval service with the "Seabees" and applications may be made at the local recruiting office, third floor, post office building.

ON WAR SAVINGS STAFF—

Forrest Brown, (left) Cumberland attorney, has been appointed by Charles Roloson, Jr., chairman of the Maryland War Savings Staff, as chairman of the Allegany County War Savings Staff, to succeed Edmund S. Burke. Burke recently resigned because he was not able to give sufficient time to the work due to press of other duties. For the past six months Brown has served as vice chairman in the county and was especially active in conducting the pledge campaign throughout the county. Porter D. Collins, (right) advertising manager of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, has been appointed vice chairman of the county committee. Collins has devoted a great deal of his time to the War bond work since the county committee was formed.

SIXTY ADDITIONAL BEDS ARE NOW AVAILABLE AT MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Second Floor of New Addition Opened; Others Ready by Jan. 1

An additional sixty beds have been made available for persons who require hospitalization with the opening of the second floor of the new addition to Memorial hospital. Two additional floors of the addition will be put into operation before January 1, 1943, according to an announcement by Harvey H. Weiss, superintendent.

Weiss said the sixty beds now available will go far toward alleviating crowded conditions at both Memorial and Allegany hospitals. The Memorial hospital addition was under construction for fifteen months and cost of building and equipping it amounted to $450,000, Weiss stated.

In addition to the sixty beds now available a new boiler room, laundry, and dining rooms are in service. A modern kitchen with the latest devices for speedy and economical preparation of meals is a feature of the new wing.

The City of Cumberland and Allegany county each paid half the cost of the new addition. A bond issue was floated to provide the funds. The John I. Vandegrift Company did the general construction work; Hering and Sharer, plumbers, installed heating and plumbing equipment and the Sterling Electric Company installed the electrical fixtures.

New Iron Lung Is Demonstrated

New Model Weighs 40 Pounds as Compared to 600 for Old Type

A new "iron lung", weighing but forty pounds as compared to 600 pounds for the old "boiler type" respirator, was demonstrated last night at Textile hall to members of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference. Harvey H. Weiss, superintendent of Memorial hospital, and Dr. C. E. Owens also attended the session.

The new "iron lung" looks like the chest protector of a suit of armor. Rubber sleeves fit tightly at the waist and arms of a person using the apparatus, sealing in the pulmonary air. It works on the same principle as the "boiler type" respirator but is not nearly as bulky and can be operated more simply.

The machine can be operated by electricity or batteries and in case neither is available manual power is used. Besides being useful in cases of infantile paralysis the machine can be used in cases of asthma, alcoholic poisoning, artificial fever treatment, brain injury, blood pressure conditions, carbon dioxide poisoning, carbon monoxide, dropsy, electric shock, embolism, cases, pneumonia, suffocation, and uremic poisoning.

Dr. Owens said the machine would be of great help in cases where newborn babies must have artificial respiration. Weiss said there are no "iron lungs" in use here and the new machine would prove a valuable aid in case of emergency. Local hospitals and police and firemen use pulmotors and respirators at present, he added.

Missing General Is Known Here

Gen. Asa N. Duncan, missing to a flight from England to North Africa, is well known in Cumberland. He visited here on several occasions. Gen. and Mrs. Duncan last visited here in 1941 when they were weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Somerville, 110 Washington street.

War Bond Sales In County Gain Since War Entry

Maintain High Monthly Average over the Past Ten Months

Since Pearl Harbor, war bond sales in Allegany county, particularly Series "E" bonds, have fluctuated monthly from a low figure of $123,142 last April, to a high figure of $370,323 last January. The average monthly sale, based on the maturity value, ten years hence has been $191,810.

According to Charles E. Piper, state committeeman for war bond and stamp sales, in the sixteen-month period ending with October, Allegany county residents have purchased bonds amounting to $2,301,735, cash value at time of purchase, or with a maturity value in ten years of $3,068,970.

Before the United States entered the war, the monthly average in the county had been $59,409 cash value. Since then the average per month has been $182,244, cash value.

In addition to the Series "E" bonds, usually bought by small investors and wage earners, the sale of "F" and "G" bonds in the county has been substantial, but according to Walter N. Ruth, state administrator, complete figures for the full period are not available on a county basis. However, for the past six months, the cash value of the three types of bonds sold here has totaled about $1,500,000 or a monthly average of $250,000.

The monthly record of "E" bonds, those bought by the small investor and through the payroll deduction plan, follows:

Month	1941	1942
January	$ 370,323
February	183,049
March	131,131
April	123,142
May	152,389
June	156,070

August	63,181	166,696
September	53,336	135,935
October	60,018	215,961
November	52,849
December	188,710
Totals	$485,756	$1,815,979

Capt. H. H. Dickey Represents State At Royal Affair

Local Officer Guest of King and Queen at Thanksgiving Reception

Capt. Howard H. Dickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Dickey, Sr., 218 Washington street, represented Maryland at a Thanksgiving reception given by King George VI and Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace, according to Lee McCordell in yesterday's issue of the Baltimore Sun. McCordell is covering activities of Maryland troops in England for the Sun papers.

The British made the observance of the American holiday an outstanding event. Hundreds of Americans, including many Marylanders, attended services in Westminster Abbey, at the Catholic Westminster Cathedral and at the London, West End Synagogue. There were Thanksgiving dinners for enlisted men at service clubs and numerous special entertainments were arranged.

The foremost phase of the British observance was the royal reception, to which were invited the commanding general and the staff to which the Marylanders are attached. Capt. Dickey was invited as the Free State's own representative.

Two Persons Break Arms in Falls Here

Mrs. Verna Cavanaugh, 42, 225 Baltimore street, was treated in Allegany hospital at 9:10 a. m. yesterday for a fracture of her right arm, suffered in a fall in her bedroom.

John Screen, 59, Walton hotel, was treated Thursday night in Memorial hospital for a fracture of his right arm, suffered when he fell down the stairs at the home of his brother.

Charles Hout, 70, Mapleside, was treated in Allegany hospital Thursday after he had cut his left hand while butchering.

Garlitz Infant Dies

William George Garlitz, five-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Garlitz, 121 West Oldtown road, died yesterday morning in Memorial hospital from acute pneumonia.

The infant was a brother of Joyce Lee Garlitz, 2½, who died November 8 from accidental poisoning.

Surviving besides the parents are his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Edward Valentine; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Lewis. Funeral services will be held Monday.

Grass Fire Extinguished

Firemen of East Side Fire Company extinguished a grass fire on Shriver hill at 2:25 p. m. yesterday.

Treiber Issues "Work or Jail" Order to Loafers

City Police Make Three Arrests for Vagrancy Here This Week

Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber yesterday issued a warning to vagrants in Cumberland to "go to work and stop loafing around on go to jail."

He pointed with special emphasis to the case of Milton Fazenbaker, Cumberland, sentenced in trial magistrate's court yesterday morning to five months in the Maryland House of Correction on a vagrancy charge.

Sentenced in Twelve Hours Fazenbaker, termed "one of our worst offenders" by Treiber, was sentenced twelve hours after his arrest Thursday night by Officers John G. Powers and E. M. Powell. Less than twenty-four hours after his arrest at 10:45 p. m. Thursday Fazenbaker was in the house of correction.

Treiber issued his warning shortly before 6 p. m. yesterday and forty minutes later city police had arrested another man on a vagrancy charge, the third such arrest made this week. A. L. Porter, taken into custody by Officer Thomas J. See, was picked up at 6:40 p. m. and held for a hearing this morning.

On Tuesday, Virginia Plum, Rowlesburg, W. Va., was sentenced to six months in the house of correction on a vagrancy charge after police found her in a dilapidated shack located between the Canal and River bridges.

Donius Goes Along Accompanying Fazenbaker to the house of correction yesterday was Louis Donius, sentenced in circuit court November 16 to six months for violating his parole, a charge that followed his arrest October 26 for vagrancy.

At that time Donius was given a suspended sentence but he subsequently was arrested by city police for violating his parole and the house of correction term, imposed by Associated Judge William A. Huster, was imposed. Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe took both men to Jessup.

Treiber pointed out that the number of vagrants here has been decreasing recently but added "we're going to keep after them until they're all gone."

Property Sales Amount to $19,900

Five Deeds Recorded Show Transfer of Several Dwellings

Five deeds filed yesterday in the office of Robert Jackson clerk of court here, show total real estate sales of $19,900.

Harry L. Cornelius and Amanda E. Cornelius conveyed to Charles Waingold and Anna Waingold, property described as lots Nos. 7 and 8 of William Long's addition to LaVale, three miles west of Cumberland near the National turnpike, for approximately $12,000.

Lester Good and Jessie Good conveyed to Frederick P. Wiseman and Anna Elizabeth Wiseman, lot No. 160 Hammond's addition to Westport, for about $5,000.

Dora W. Swach conveyed to Douglas R. Bowie and Helen D. Bowie, lot on Washington street at East Lane for about $1,200.

George S. Arnold, receiver for the First National Bank of Frostburg, sold to Amanda E. Cornelius, lot No. 6 of William Long's addition to LaVale for about $1,500.

The Peoples Bank of Cumberland conveyed to George G. McBride and Ethel L. McBride a lot on the east side of Oldtown road for $200.

One mortgage, one right of way agreement and one conditional sale contract were also filed for record.
